

VIDEO: Queen Anne's Lace versus Hemlock: What You Need to Know

In this video, Jason's out and about and talks a bit about plants that look alike but with wildly different effects on you if you were to consume them.

His example of wild carrots versus water hemlocks, both in the Apiaceae family, is the best as the first can be used as a wild medicinal for a host of ailments, while the latter is a legendary poison known to be deadly since Ancient Greek times.
